LHD Historic Preservation – Addressing the Misconceptions

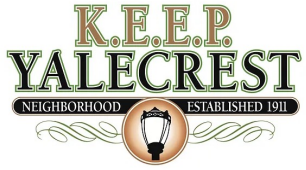

SALT LAKE CITY LOCAL HISTORIC DISTRICTS

- What the LHD initiative is:
 - A process to preserve the historical aspect of SLC
 - A process to allow property owners to decide
 - A very long process of communication among stakeholders (property owners and city)
 - Citywide preservation (Not just a Harvard-Yale issue)
- What the LHD initiative is not:
 - A means to circumvent the current city plans that encourage social, economic, and environmental sustainability
 - A means to impede city plans for affordable housing

LHD Historic Preservation – Communication with Property Owners

- 1800 block Yale demographics – Getting to know your neighbors
 - 9/24 of property owners have children under the age of 18 – attend local public schools
 - Strong commitment to community preservation – not just the LHD
 - Long-term investment in keeping a safe environment for everyone –
- Concerns and/or Objections
 - Restrictions – impact on individual property owners (e.g., renovations)
 - Encourage dialogue with city staff to answer questions and address concerns

Summary Statement in a Letter to the Salt Lake City Council

SALT LAKE CITY LOCAL HISTORIC DISTRICTS

"The rich cultural heritage and historic structures of the Upper Yale Heights LHD are not just remnants of the past; they are living testaments to the stories, struggles, and triumphs of the people who lived before us and continue with those who serve as stewards of the homes and the surrounding environment today."
